LAI D AT REST.

Impressive funeral ceremonies were held over the late George T. Freeman at the Baptist Church, of which the deceased was a prominent member, on Sunday afternoon. In spite of the inclement weather the church was filled with the many friends of the departed. The Rev. Dr. Watson conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. C. H. Spaulding, a former pastor. The Rev. Dr. Watson read appropriate passages of scripture, after which he spoke at some length of the many virtues and Christian life of the deceased. He especially made prominent his abiding, friendly traits of character, and his fidelity in all things. Dr. Watson's tribute to the noble, Christian life of Mr. Freeman was feelingly expressed in terms of affection and endearment. The Rev. C. H. Spaulding made the second prayer. The music rendered by the Columbian Quartet, of which T. Ralph Parris of Arlington is a member, was choice in its selection, while its expression was full of tender pathos.

The pall-bearers were Omar Whittemore and Walter Simpson of the Arlington Boat Club, Charles W. Bunker and Winfield S. Durgin of Hiram Lodge of Masons, G. W. Sampson, a member of the Royal Arch Chapter of Masons, and George G. Allen, a brother member of the church. A wealth of flowers gave testimony to the sweet, fragrant life of the deceased. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richardson sent potted Easter lilies; Mr. F. C. Bradman, a wreath; Mrs. T. R. Parris, roses; Mr. Freeman's class of Sunday school boys, pinks; Dr. Hooker, violets; Edward and Ethel Bartlett, violets; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wyman, calla lilies; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall, roses; Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Blake, a clock of pinks; Mr. and Mrs. W. K. The two brothers of the deceased were present, Mr. Warren H. Freeman of Chicago, and Mr. Eugene Freeman, from one of the Shore towns, who, with the only sister, Mrs. William E. Wood, Massachusetts avenue, are the remaining three children of the late John D. Freeman's family. The interment was made in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

FINE ENTERTAINMENT.

A very successful entertainment was held in Town Hall, last Tuesday evening, under the W. C. T. U., the proceeds of which went to help defray the expenses of temperance work in this town. There was a good-sized audience present assuring the financial as well as the artistic success of the affair. Mrs. Henry A. Kidder, a graduate of the Emerson College of Oratory, had charge of the program. She was assisted by students of the college, who took part in the Shakespearean mummings and in the concluding sketch, by Mr. George Henry Galpin of Somerville, the whistling soloist, and by Mr. Charles Randall of Salem, who kindly consented to take Dr. Clock's place on the program, the latter having such a bad cold as to be unable to sing. The entertainment was opened with a solo by Randall, "Still as the Night." This was followed by a character sketch "He Worried about it" by Bert Poland, which was encored. That most dramatic "Dagger Scene" from Macbeth, was given in a most realistic manner by Mrs. Kidder and Mr. Frederick M. Hall. Mr. Galpin's whistling solo, a selection from Mascagni's opera of "Cavalleria Rusticana," pleased all his hearers greatly, and he was recalled with most hearty applause. The "Grave-diggers scene," from Hamlet, was admirably rendered, Mr. H. Toros Daghistanian assuming the part of the melancholy prince of Denmark. Mr. Hall that of the first grave-digger, while Mr. J. H. Crosby essayed the double role of second grave-digger and Horatio the faithful friend of an unhappy master.
 Mrs. Kidder's reading of a pathetic sketch entitled "The Newsboy's Friend" was most acceptable, being in her best style, and she was accorded an enthusiastic encore. In response she read an extract from the sayings of the famous Chicago sage "Mr. Dooley" regarding the adventures and conquests of "Cousin Jarge" Dewey "or Dooley it all the same" in Manila bay, this being much appreciated, especially by the younger part of her audience. Randall rendered another solo "For All Eternity" in a most pleasing manner. The program was closed by a dramatic sketch, "A Pair of Lunatics" in which Mrs. Kidder and Mr. Bert Poland took the parts. UNIVERSALIST FAIR.

It would seem as if some malign influence relentlessly pursued the good people connected with the Universalist Society of Arlington. No sooner do they arrange for an entertainment of any nature than they find themselves in direct conflict with the most unfavorable weather conditions possible which threaten to bring the result of their labors to naught. The weather on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening, the dates set for the grand fair held in the vestry of the church, proved the most stormy and disagreeable of the week; but if the ladies feared that this fact would interfere to any great extent with the financial and social success of the affair they were destined to be most happily disappointed, for from both standpoints it was a great success. The vestry was prettily decorated with white and yellow bunting draping the walls, while streamers of the same color and material hung from the ceiling radiating from a most effective center piece. The supporting pillars were swathed in a like manner and at the top of each was fastened a handsome bunch of lilies. Wreaths fastened here and there upon the walls completed the scheme of decoration. The various tables were arranged so as to leave the greatest possible amount of room for visitors and the wares were attractively displayed. On the right, as one entered the door, Mr. Kimball Russell had a fine display of vegetables for sale and his department was well patronized. Next came the Chinese Laundry, utilizing the small vestry, a most realistic reproduction of a typical "washee washee" shop, except that the attendants instead of being middle-aged Celestials were young ladies connected with the Sunday School daintily attired in Chinese costumes. This proved a form of the ever present grab bag and the attendants were kept busy waiting upon their many costumers. Miss Bitzer had charge of this feature and her assistants were Misses Amy Winn, Helene Johnson, Dora Bitzer, Louise Gray, and Josephine Thorpe. The fancy table next claimed the attention

Mrs. F. B. Wadleigh, and Miss Sunergren was next in line. From this table were sold articles contributed by former members of the church who have left town. The executive committee of the fair, Mrs. C. F. Coolidge, President of the Samaritan Society, Mrs. William Brooks, president of the Alter Guild, Mrs. Frank Frost, vice president of the Samaritan Society, assisted by Mr. Axtman were in attendance at the domestic table, at which many articles useful about the house were displayed. Last, but by no means least, in completing the circuit of the hall the visitor found himself at the candy table, where a tempting array of sweets were disposed of under the direction of Mrs. J. Fred McLeod, assisted by Mrs. Kimball, Miss Martha E. Durgin, and Miss Edith G. Woodbury. The principal attraction of the whole affair was the "Pedlar's Parade" given on Wednesday evening. Promptly at eight o'clock the head of the grotesque procession appeared and the march and counter march around the hall began. Pedlars of all classes and descriptions were there from the apple vender of our northern cities to the swathy son of sunny Italy with his scissor grinding machine upon his back. A high official of the B. & M. railroad created much amusement as in the guise of a Jew pedlar, he offered his assortment of collar buttons, shoe strings and suspenders for sale. The pop corn merchant and paper girl were in evidence, and the rag man with pack slung over his shoulder was not far behind them. A typical tramp buttonholed sympathetic spectators and begged pitteously for ten cents to get something to eat. The baker passed around through the crowd with his tray full of good things and drove a thriving trade. The carter with his produce for sale proved a great attraction as did the little Chinese near the head of the procession. Peanut and candy vendors mingled with the other components of this motley parade, and one worthy member of the society attired in white advertised the merits of a certain corn cure. Another solid citizen of the town peddled bananas and oranges among the spectators, and to judge by appearances business was rushing. Several other characters were represented, among others an enterprising boot black made his appearance, and two young ladies acting as flower girls disposed of many bunches of violets and some handsome pinks. Following the march around the room and just previous to the scattering among the visitors to sell their wares, the performers gathered in a circle and sang a most original song to the familiar tune of "Solomon Levi" which convulsed the audience with laughter. This unique feature of the fair proved most entertaining and reflects much credit upon those who got it up so effectively. On Thursday evening a bountiful supper such as the ladies of this church are noted for serving, attracted many and the attendance proved gratifyingly large for such a stormy night. The supper committee was composed of the following ladies. Mrs. William Winn, chairman, Mrs. Albert Kimball, Mrs. J. O. Holt, Miss Abbie Russell, Mrs. Waters, Mrs. Trundy, Mrs. Joseph Ronco, Mrs. Wharton and Mrs. Woodbury.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF ARLINGTON.

The public schools of Arlington are the prophecy of her future. There can be no interest more vital than that had in the right education of the children. There is no safer investment of capital than that which we make for the further and fuller development of all that pertains to the educational world. Say what we may, and do as we will, then will it forever remain true that mind is superior to matter. The inside of the boy and girl is worth infinitely more than all their material, outward surroundings. To draw out and develop the inner man is the work of the schools. To make the most of a man you must educate him, and then he will be likely to prove himself a man, although he does not possess a dollar in all the world. It is a mistaken and ridiculous notion that in any instance does the gold, piled however high, make up or constitute in and of itself the least factor in intellectual attainments. A whole man can only be the product of those innate qualities which God bestowed in the creation of the human kind. When parents declare without hesitation that they are determined to make men out of their boys and women out of their girls, then do they size up the situation as God views it. The real work of life begins with the children, and so it is that our first and chiefest interests centre in the public schools.

In an educational way, Arlington has been progressing all the while. In the early 60's this town raised yearly for school purposes something less than $3000, while last year her appropriation for the maintenance of her schools amounted to $36,360.97. Of course, the town has rapidly grown in population and wealth since 1860, but not as rapidly as has her generous and sensible outlay for the education of her children. Arlington, as we have already said, has always been well to the front in all intellectual acquirements. We never write of her schools without first and foremost paying tribute to the Hon. William E. Parmenter, who may be rightfully declared the founder and father of our present excellent educational system. Mr. Parmenter, when president of the school board, 35 or 40 years ago, was greatly in advance of all that pertained to the public schools of that day. He then brought to the educational interests of Arlington that cultured foresight which now in the year 1899 remains a potent factor in our present system of instruction. Mr. Parmenter was in himself a constant inspiration to both teacher and pupil. His love of learning was along right lines, for he well understood the philosophy of education. We say this much of Mr. Parmenter as an educator, for we are unwilling that, through the lapse of time, his name should be even partially forgotten as the prime mover in all that now distinguishes the schools of Arlington. Being especially interested in the education of the boys and girls, we more or less frequently drop into our schools. It was only the other morning that we pulled the door-bell of the Russell school building, in answer to which we received a cordial welcome from Mr. F. T. Sutcliffe, the principal of the Russell school, and the supervisor of all the grammar schools. Mr. Sutcliffe graduated from Dartmouth College in the class of 1880. He maintained an excellent standing as a man and a scholar during his entire college course. Upon graduating, Mr. Sutcliffe was elected principal of the Main Street Grammar School, in Manchester, N. H., which position he held for six years, or until he was elected to the principalship of the Lincoln Street Grammar School, in the same city. He had charge of that school for twelve years. Last July he was elected as the master of the High School in Manchester, but as the work was not quite in the line of his choice, desiring to fit himself for the supervisory duties in his profession, he declined his election to the Manchester High School, and accepted his present position here in the schools of Arlington. Mr. Sutcliffe has made a most favorable beginning in his school duties here. In the first place, he doesn't act the professional school-master. He is a man among men, and this fortunate fact is one of his strongest points. Well up in all that is modern in the educational world, both as to subject matter and methods of instruction, he still has no assumptive professional air or cloth about him—and this is just why he is so pleasantly appreciated both by his teachers and by his pupils. We shall at an early date write more in detail of our public schools. It is sufficient for us to say at this writing that the schools under the supervision of Mr. Sutcliffe promise much for our immediate future. A little later on, we shall have something to say of the individual teacher and her work. We purpose, also, to write of the studies taught, and of the methods of instruction employed. In fact, there is no interest connected with our public schools which the Enterprise will not more or less frequently inform the parents and tax payers. All our educational interests and their management should be known from top to bottom by every man, woman and child in Arlington.

THE WEATHER.

There is no more prolific subject of conversation in all the world than that which the weather affords. It is our morning greeting to the friend we meet upon the street, and it is the accompaniment of our good-bye as we leave him at the turn of the road. It looks like rain or snow, the wind is getting east, and O what a chill in the air, and did you ever see such abominable weather, are among our every day ejaculations. Sometimes we have thought that all this weather talk gets to be more or less frequently, altogether unendurable. It is somewhere told of the man who became noted throughout his neighborhood, in that he agreed with whatever statement might be made to him concerning the weather. So, three wags coming together, agreed to test the truthfulness or otherwise of the story, by posting themselves at different positions along the road where the all-weather man must pass to get to his business office, and then each of the three were to make different remarks about the weather. The positions taken, the man in question soon made his appearance. The first man he met said to him, after the usual greeting: "What a beautiful morning!" "Beautiful indeed," came the reply. The second man greeting him, said: "What disagreeable weather!" "Disagreeable surely," was the answer. The third man, after his "good morning," said to the good-natured, elderly gentleman: "We are sure of a storm," to which the reply came: "Yes, and that immediately." Then the three wags hastened to surround the man much interrogated, and when they had him safely cornered, they said to him: "Here, old man, what do you mean by all this? We three have met you, and made entirely different remarks to you about the weather, and you have agreed with all of us—now what do you mean by such agreement?" "I mean," replied the old gentleman, "that I haven't time to discuss the weather and disagree thereon with every d—n fool I meet on the road."

But, then, say what you may, and protest as you will, it is a good deal fortunate, after all, that it is always in order to discuss the weather. This privilege lets many a poor fellow out of what otherwise would have proven an awkward position. Just imagine, for instance, the spruce young man, with the faintest indication of a mustache, in the presence of his best girl, twirling his hat, and standing first on one foot, and then on the other, not knowing what to say next, when, all at once, and just in the nick of time, the weather outlook pops into his mind, and so, coming to his wits, he declares himself something as follows: "Say, Mehitable Ann, I think it will be fair tomorrow, for the sky was red to-night as the sun went down." Yes, this everlasting weather question has been and is a God-send to many a dunce who doesn't know what to say next. Let the discussion of the weather continue.

THE FILIPINO.

Prof. Dean C. Worcester, whom we knew years ago in his home at Thetford, Vermont, now one of the United States commissioners en route to Manila, in his book entitled "The Philippine Islands," writes in part as follows:

"The Filipino has developed many admirable traits. He is peaceable and cheerful; his self-restraint is remarkable; his family is well ordered; in some instances, at any rate, he shows executive ability of no mean order when called upon to attend to the administration of local affairs in the more important towns."

"It is my own belief that no intratropical people offers brighter hope for the future than do the Philippine natives; and if trouble arises in our dealings with them, I believe there is far more likelihood that it will be the result of our own maladministration that it will come from inherent and objectionable peculiarities of their character."

"There is a woful lack of people who are in all respects qualified to undertake the task of giving good government to our new wards. An intelligent and consistent policy will remedy this lack; but unless we are willing to pay our Philippine officials enough to command the services of able men, unless we apply civil-service rules to the filling of every position of importance, and keep men who have taken pains to fit themselves for their duties in office, we can look for very serious trouble, and it will be deserved."

There seems according to the above authority, to be some hope for the Philippines after all that has been said and done, and it will be well if our government recognizes the fact.

HOW DO YOU INTERPRET IT?

How do you interpret the following which is heard in many a pulpit of a Sunday morning, in the opening prayer: "O Lord we look up unto Thee, because we have no where else to look"—or that other declaration or exclamation, "O Lord we come unto Thee because we have nowhere else to go." Both of the above expressions seem to us most unfortunate and out of place, for if they mean anything, they must mean that we would not look unto the Lord, if it were possible for us to look elsewhere, and that we would not approach Him, if we could go elsewhere. Would'n't it be a more fitting expression if our prayers were somewhat as follows: "O Lord we look unto Thee because we love to behold even afar-off, that heaven wherein Thou rulest," and "we come unto Thee, because we desire Thy presence." A simple prayer, and to the point, is the better way of placing our petitions. Should you carefully analyze the average prayer made in public and cut out all meaningless expressions, lots of time would be saved. "We are not heard for our much speaking," should always be borne in mind.

JUST WAIT.

Just wait for a brief while, before entering judgement, when things go wrong with you. Do not forget that behind the cloud the sun is still shining, and remember, too, that when the fury of the storm shall have spent itself the rainbow will arch the heavens. In most instances we are "too previous" in our conclusions. We do not wait until the evidence is all in. In an unlucky moment we are quite ready to condemn everything and everybody, when the morrow, it may be, is laden with all sorts of good things for us. Patience is one of those rare virtues that is willing to bide its time. "All is well that ends well." So don't get in a fret and a stew from what may seem an unfavorable beginning. Wait until the work is completed and the day of reckoning has come. It may be that all the odd change will be coming to you, just wait and see how it is.

HOLY WEEK.

As will be seen in this issue, our Catholic and Episcopal friends in Arlington, as elsewhere, are largely to devote the entire coming week to the sacred lessons it suggests. The keeping of Lent is that religious custom which makes over, or should make over anew, the physical as well as the individual religious life. To give the stomach a chance to rest and recover from what in many instances is the glutony of the year, is a service, we doubt not, acceptable to the Lord. And then to follow the Master through those forty days of temptation and fasting is to put one's self more intimately in connection with Him "who was tempted in all points as we are, yet without sin."

The entire Christian world of late years has caught much of the spirit of the Catholic and Episcopal Church, in partially, at least, keeping Lent, and particularly in observing Easter.

TOWN MEETING.

The town meeting, which occurs on Monday evening, should be fully attended. The appropriations for the coming year are to be voted, and other important questions will come before the meeting upon which action will be taken. The sum to be voted for the maintenance of our public schools for the coming year should be generous as heretofore. Let there be a full turn out on Monday evening, and let every man vote.

ELECTROCUTED.

Mrs. Martha Place met her death in the electric chair at Sing Sing, on Monday morning, at 11.01. She met the demands of the law, apparently in a state of remarkable composure. The crime for which she paid the penalty of death was the killing of her step-daughter in Brooklyn something more than a year ago, and her attempt to kill her husband.

It was at the time that Oliver Wendell Holmes was being somewhat sharply and unfavorably criticised by the more orthodox portion of the world for some things he had said in his "At the Breakfast Table," that being called upon to respond to a toast given him at a dinner of his profession he responded as follows: "Here's to the one profession the only profession, that if a member thereof were to write a book, he would be compelled to go outside of his profession to find a rascal for the hero of his story."

New England can turn out a greater variety of weather than can any other locality in this or any other country. In spite of her history of which we boast so much, she has a climate at certain seasons of the year which is simply abominable, of which the spring of 1899 is a sample. "It makes us tired."

The Algonquin Club gave a brilliant reception to General Miles at its rooms in Boston on Tuesday evening—Indeed a series of receptions have been given the brave warrior during the present week. There is no city in all the country that can excel Boston as host; and she recognizes that General Nelson A. Miles is worthy of the best she can give.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Vive la Republique! Vive Loubet!
Vive bon bourgeois!

There is too much froth on French politics, and its boiling point is too low.

The "$100 penalty" cure ought to be applied to some foul-mouthed Parisians. They must be afflicted with an abnormal activity of the salivary glands.

No one who credits M. Loubet with possessing ordinary intelligence and foresight can doubt his sincerity when, in the Gallery of the Busto at Versailles just before his election to the presidency of the Republic, he exclaimed to his surrounding friends "If you love me, I hope you won't vote for me." His feelings must have been akin to those of George Washington who, in a letter to General Knox just prior to his assuming the office of chief magistrate of the United States, declared "In confidence I tell you (with the world it would obtain little credit) that my movements to the chair of government will be accompanied by feelings not unlike those of a culprit who is going to his place of execution."

Hanna says that "Tom Reed is not a fool"; but Shafter says that he "is troubled with a swelled head." One can seem to see the sardonic smile that would light up Tom's countenance as he listens to the diagnoses of these experts. It would vie with that bland "shoo-fly," smile which he is wont to bestow upon his "democratic friends."

"Why quit our own to stand on foreign ground? Why entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalry, humor, or caprice?" Washington's Farewell address.

"We know how to die as men in the defence of the liberty of our country." Proclamation of Filipinos, Feb. 15, 1899.

If the democratic party could for once break away from its traditional proneness for blundering, would abandon the defunct 16 to 1 issue, and would inscribe upon its banners the motto "Millions for defense but not one cent for conquest," it might sweep the country at the next presidential election. Only one thing could prevent it, and that is that its opponents should put in nomination a man of the "sand" of Thomas B. Reed.

Let us be thankful that we have a few public men who are not yet blind worshippers of the Moloch of Imperialism which is "destined" to grind to powder the naked inhabitants of far distant islands, a race of human beings whose only offence is that they have imbibed too freely of doctrines such as taught by Patrick Henry, Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln.

An exceedingly sensitive instrument (called a radio-micrometer) for detecting absorbed radiations, first devised by d'Arsonval, has recently been independently reinvented and improved by Mr. Boys. It is constructed on the principle of the thermo-electric pair, the pair consisting of small strips of antimony and bismuth suspended between the poles of a U-magnet. This instrument is capable of detecting a change of temperature of a millionth of a degree Centigrade, and is said to be able to detect the radiations from a candle flame two miles distant.

Mount Auburn, where at every turn the names of illustrious dead quicken one's memory of the history they shared in making, has been appropriately called "The Westminster Abbey of New England."

In the old cemetery near Harvard square is a tombstone of slate decorated with crossbones, coffins, and a winged head, and bearing the following quaint inscription:

"This good school dame
No longer school must keep,
Which gives us cause For children's sake to weep."

The name of this dame, or, in modern parlance, schoolmistress, was Joanna Winship, who died in 1707.

During the months of March and April, and on all humid days throughout the year, all passengers on the trolley-cars destined for Jason Street, Arlington, are expected by the town officials to alight at some one of the five paved crossings between Academy Street and the railroad crossing. The town may some time afford to establish danger signals at the terminus of Jason Street.

Fable says that a hippopotamus walking one day in a forest scared a mother-partridge from her nest of new-hatched fledglings. Touched with compassion, the kind-hearted animal exclaimed: "You poor, forsaken babes! Let me be a mother to you." So she sat down upon the nest of little partridges. Moral: It is not every one who can run an orphan asylum. The author of this fable was a prophet, for nothing could better epitomize the blended humor and pathos of the present Philippine situation. Having scared Spain from the nest, we are trying to run the orphan asylum by the methods of the hippopotamus.

The best way to civilize and christianize the Filipinos is to exterminate them. The best Filipino is the dead Filipino. So, William L., send on your Oregans and sweep these naked bow-and-arrow warriors into the sea, after which you can give your attention to the English sparrows.

The boiling point of water under an average sea-level atmospheric pressure is given in our text-books as 212° F. The boiling point is really very unstable. The presence of nuclei about which vapor may begin to accumulate, especially the presence of dissolved air, which collects itself in small bubbles when the temperature rises, greatly favors the beginning of ebullition, so that in proportion as the liquid is freed from these, the boiling point is raised. For example, water freed from air by boiling and then allowed to cool has been raised by reheating to 317°. When retarded ebullition does commence it goes on in an explosive manner, and the liquid "bumps" violently against the bottom of the vessel. Dufour, by suspending drops of water in a mixture of linseed and clove oils (so as to secure the requisite specific density for flotation), found that the drop remained a liquid up to 392°. On touching it with a glass rod, it exploded with great force. The boiling point of a liquid is affected by the nature of the vessel in which it is heated; for example water boils at a higher temperature in glass than in a copper vessel, the difference being ordinarily nearly 2°. In a perfectly clean glass vessel water may be raised to a temperature of 221°.

Any one wishing to contribute any articles will kindly leave them at Mrs. Gray's on Bartlett avenue, or at N. J. Hardy's bake shop, and all such contributions will be received with thanks. A small admission fee will be charged, and the young ladies should realize a good sum for this worthy charity.

We had a pleasant interview with Mr. Warren H. Freeman of Chicago, on Monday, at the home of his late brother, Mr. George T. Freeman, on Pleasant street. Mr. Freeman will be remembered by Arlington people as the youngest of her boys who went to the War of the Rebellion, where he did valiant service for his country. Warren, as he was known in those days, had the spirit of the soldier, and so it was that he shouldered his musket and went to the front. He was in nearly all the severest battles of the war. He fought at Antietam, in the battle of the Wilderness, at Petersburg, and at Gettysburg, at which latter place he was taken prisoner. Quiet and unassuming as was his late brother, yet he never showed the "white feather." In the battle of Antietam Mr. Freeman was slightly wounded in the face, otherwise he went through that terrible war unscathed. We were glad to see Mr. Freeman after a lapse of 39 years. Mr. Freeman is a successful business man in the Queen City of the West.

Mr. Henry J. Locke is on a business trip to Washington.

Mr. A. D. W. Prescott left town yesterday afternoon for a vacation trip to Washington.

Do not forget the concert at the Universalist Church on Easter Monday evening. The talent will be from the Choral Club.

Caldwell's new advertisement appears this week. Don't forget to patronize him, and not to go to Boston. His stock is O. K. and up to date.

Mr. Burpee-Wood of Portsmouth, N. H., of the firm of Woods Bros., spent Sunday with his brother, Harry Wood, at 677 Massachusetts avenue. They also run an express in Portsmouth, N. H.

On Saturday, April 1, Mr. J. Prescott Gage will sell at public auction three lots of land on Irving street and Bartlett avenue. These lots are in the best locality of the town, and should bring a good price. See advertisement on first page.

Woods Bros. new teams brought forth considerable favorable comment this week. They have two wagons, one for their express business, and the other for furniture and piano moving. Give them a call.

Dr. R. G. Young of Pleasant street, has been made medical examiner for this district for the John Hancock Metropolitan Mutual Industrial Co. This office came to him unsolicited. The Dr. was also made town physician on Monday last. The Enterprise congratulates the Dr. on his good luck.

The first Sunday in April is Easter Day. At St. John's Church there will be morning prayer and Holy Communion at 7.30. Holy Communion and sermon at 10.30. Children's Easter festival at 4 o'clock. We shall give the program of music next week.

Mr. Winthrop Pattee, connected with the office of Henry W. Savage, has just sold one of the finest residential properties in Winchester, situated on the west side, on Sheffield road, near Church street. It consists of a finely built 13-room house, with every possible convenience, together with 10,450 square feet of land. The house was built by Capt. S. W. Snow, costing about $12,000, and was sold to Will M. Mason of Concord, N. H., who buys for occupancy.

Pastor Watson of the Baptist Church will preach Sunday morning on "The True Yoke-fellow." All friends of George T. Freeman, who were prevented by the unusual severity of the storm from attending his funeral services last Sunday, are respectfully invited.

The whist party under the auspices of the Whist and Cycle Club, held in G. A. R. Hall on Tuesday evening proved a great success, there being 42 tables. The prizes were awarded as follows: 1st gentleman's prize a handsome quartered oak chair, Mr. A. A. Tilden. 2nd gentleman's prize an ornamental clock, Mr. J. A. Marden. The 1st lady's prize a decorated lamp, was won by Mr. C. A. Wetherbee, he taking a lady's place. The 2nd lady's prize a pair of pearl opera glasses, Miss Mabel Hartwell. Booby prizes were won by Miss Dinsmore, and Mr. J. Bitzer.

On Good-Friday, March 31, there will be services at St. John's Church, as follows: Morning prayers and Litany at 10 o'clock. Special service for children, but to which all are invited, at 4.30. The rector will give the last of the Lenten addresses to boys and girls on, "Who Loved Me, and Gave Himself for Me."

On Thursday evening Mrs. Frank F. Russell of Russell avenue celebrated her 60th birthday by giving a Pink Tea to her grandchildren. The children assembled early in the afternoon, and after enjoying themselves with games for an hour, they were ushered into the dining room, where the tables were beautifully decorated with pinks and violets, and laden with the good things that delight the hearts (and mouths) of the little ones. The hostess was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, in kindly remembrance of the day.

Services appropriate to "Passion Week" will be held in the Baptist Church. Rev. Riley A. Vose of Cambridge will preach on Tuesday evening, Rev. T. S. Barbour of Boston on Wednesday evening, Rev. Orville Coates of Somerville on Thursday evening, and Pastor Watson, Friday evening. The topics are: "In Gethsemane," "In Pilate's Hall," "On the Cross," and "In the Tomb," and will be taken by the preachers in the order named. All desiring to participate in these timely thoughts and services are cordially invited.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

The Ladies' Aid Society held a very successful meeting on Friday afternoon.

The Enterprise was right on time last Saturday—thanks to the new press.

The Rev. Dr. Stenbridge will exchange pulpits on Sunday with Rev. Edwin Smith of Bedford.

There will be a meeting at the Park Avenue Congregational Church on Monday evening to take final steps in the matter of incorporation.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Farmer are glad to see them back again from their Washington trip.

The first sermon on the new Congregational Church will be preached on the second Sunday in April. Services as usual, however, in the Park Avenue Church Sunday, meanwhile.

The outlook for this locality during the coming summer is universally promising. Several new buildings are to be erected, and there is already a demand for homes for the coming heated term.

The Sunshine Club met on Friday evening with Mr. Sweat, on Oakland avenue. One of the peculiar features of this club is that it meets every week during the year. It has taken no vacation for the past three years.

The Hillside Literary Union will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when the essayists, Mr. Herbert Pierce and Mr. Arthur Perkins, will discuss some of the phases of nature.

The Rev. Mr. Vinal will preach as usual in Crescent Hall, on Sunday, at 3 o'clock p. m., and at 7.30 he will hold an evening service. The prayer meeting was held this week at the residence of Mr. Trafethen.

The walk from Dame's drug store to the tip of Arlington Heights was made on Thursday morning with much difficulty. It was ice—ice on every side—and so it was throughout Arlington. One needs a level head and a sure foot to make his way this weather. But, never mind, the summer is coming.

A prominent citizen of the Heights wishes to learn from the school committee why there have been no dedicatory exercises attending the opening of the Locke School? A pertinent inquiry. And the further query comes from the Heights why no arrangements for lighting the Locke School building of an evening have been made? The only means of lighting it at present of a dark night is by means of a barn lantern.

The Park Avenue Congregational Church introduced a pleasing innovation in the usher line on Wednesday evening, which sister churches will do well to adopt. The innovation to which we refer, was the four prettiest young ladies of the Heights who served as ushers. The following made up this attractive quartette: the Misses Ella Stearns, Alice White, Mabel Snow and Margaret Elder. These young ladies with much ease and grace performed the duties assigned them.

The Rev. Dr. Herrick was heard to say on leaving for home, on Wednesday evening, that he had never attended a more enjoyable service than that held for the purpose of organizing the new church. The truth is, everybody enjoyed the exercises, and we repeat what we said last week, that the Rev. Dr. Stenbridge and his associates deserve much credit for the push and zeal they have manifested in this new movement. The Enterprise wishes the new church all the good things of which it has already proven itself worthy.

The recently organized Park Avenue Congregational Church at Arlington Heights, was recognized on Wednesday afternoon, March 22, by an ecclesiastical council called to examine its "polity, faith and practice." These being found satisfactory, the church was received into the fellowship of the Congregational denomination. The Rev. Samuel E. Herrick, D. D., of Boston, was chosen moderator, and the Rev. Frank E. Ramsdell of Cambridgeport, scribe. The records of the new organization were read, also its covenant and by-laws, by Rev. A. E. Stenbridge, D. D., acting pastor, in the absence of Mr. Edward Nicoll, clerk of the church. A delicious supper was served by the ladies, and at 7.30 p. m. the formal exercises of recognition began. These proved to be of exceeding interest, and will not soon be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to be present. Had the weather been propitious the seating capacity of the church would have been tested to the uttermost.

The congregation joined heartily in singing led by a mixed choir which rendered two fine selections, and was assisted by Mr. Bacon who sang the "Palm Branches" with excellent effect. The Rev. Joshua Coit, secretary of the Home Missionary Society, presided, and called upon the scribe to read the minutes of the council. Rev. Robert W. Wallace, Ph. D. offered the prayer and Rev. Dr. Herrick preached the sermon, a superb reinforcement of the truth that all men are alike children of God, whether good or bad, loyal or disloyal. It was because we are sons that "God sent forth the spirit of his son into our hearts, crying, Abba, Father." The mission of Christ was not to bring us into sonship, we were sons already—but to rehabilitate us in our sonship and make us worthy of the relationship we bear to him, whom we are taught to call Our Father. The Rev. S. C. Bushnell had been asked to welcome the church into the fellowship of the Congregational Churches, but when he found that his place on the program brought him between Dr. Herrick and Dr. McKenzie, he said he felt as if he were about to be crushed as between the upper and neither millstone. He proceeded, however, to give a hearty welcome to the new organization, saying that he was the spokesman not merely for his own church, nor yet for the churches and ministers represented in this council, but that he had the high honor of speaking for all the Congregational Churches throughout the world, in welcoming this youngest daughter into the sisterhood of the churches. Not only will the Congregationalists of Arlington feel a new interest in you but Congregationalists everywhere will be glad to know that on Arlington Heights another church of their order has been established. He spoke of the great meaning which inhered in the word "fellowship," which not only represents one of the two fundamental ideas of Congregationalism—the independence of the local church and the fellowship of all the churches—but as the word which reveals man in his larger relations. Great though he is in himself, he is infinitely greater by virtue of his relationship with others. Through fellowship with them he multiplies himself a thousand fold. This will be found to be true of you. You have at once a new outlook; you enter with us into the inheritance of the past, and you look with us beyond the limited horizon of the present. Hitherto your vision has been circumscribed, you have had all you could do to escape shipwreck in your own harbor. Now you will go outside and navigate in deep water. God is teaching us all in these days to grapple with world problems. He has forced them upon our attention. You will help to solve them by your connection with a great denomination. Nothing but praise can be spoken of the union church of which the present organization is the culmination. But far better things can be expected of you than were possible before.

We make no attempt to repeat the address of Dr. McKenzie. It is enough to say that he was at his very best. All the qualities for which he is pre-eminent, appeared in their fullest degree.
We have often heard him speak when we felt that if this were his last speech it was worthy of being ranked as his best. Those who heard him on Wednesday night had this feeling. He stirred the hearts of all, particularly of the fifty members of the new organization who were reminded that in organizing a Congregational Church they had planned for the simplest yet hardest kind of christian service, whose success would depend upon the faithfulness of each individual. Forty-seven or forty eight could not make a success, it required the whole fifty!

The exercises were concluded by the benediction which was pronounced by Rev. A. C. Stenbridge, who is certainly to be congratulated for his untiring and successful efforts in organizing this church. The order of service was as follows:

Organ Prelude.
Doxology, By the Choir and Congregation Invocation, By the Moderator

The fourth and last party of the series given by the four young men calling themselves the W. K. S. R. was held in Crescent Hall last evening. The other parties have been great successes, but this one eclipsed them all in the brilliancy of the costumes worn by the ladies, and may fairly be termed the most swell party of the season at the Heights. In addition to the dancing set of the Heights there were present many friends from the Centre and from out of town, and all enjoyed themselves to the utmost inspired by the fine music and the perfect floor.
Custar's Orchestra furnished the music, which was of the highest quality, and much appreciated by both managers and guests. Refreshments were served, and no effort was spared to make this last of these most enjoyable parties an immense success.

CRESCENT HILL CLUB.

The club will give a "Basket party" on Easter Tuesday, April 4, for members and invited friends.

For the fourth time the weather has prevented the cross-country walk.

Vice-President Loran is missed evenings, his working hours being from 4 p. m. until 12.

"Ladies' night" was greatly enjoyed by a large number, and the cake walk created quite a sensation.

The free-hand drawing class is divided into two sections, the younger pupils not being able to keep up with the older ones.

Following is the standing in the whist tournament: Lusk, 18; T. L. Kenny, 14; Jukes, 10; E. Lewis, 9; H. Lewis, 5; Kirchmayer, 21; Zwink, 2; Barker, 5.

Case Postponed.

Mr. James' case came up in court this morning, but was continued until next Thursday at the request of his counsel.

NOTICE

The usual Sunday services at the Congregational Church, Pleasant street, will be held at the Town Hall, a defect in the boiler at the church preventing their taking place there.

On Landing Troops.

In landing a force on a hostile shore a great deal more has to be provided than the vessels to carry it. There are people who discuss an invasion, and who seem to have an idea that the matter is limited to crowding a number of soldiers on a ship and directing them to be landed at a certain place. There is no consideration of how they are to get on shore with their arms, guns and ammunition; that merchant ships have only a few boats, and that artillery cannot be transferred from ship to beach without any previous preparation. When we consider that, notwithstanding the support and resources of a large combined fleet and the presence of transports, more than a month of hard work was required before an army of 50,000 men could be landed in the Crimea, we are justified in doubting those who assert that the invasion of our shores with 150,000 or 200,000 men is not only within the bounds of possibility, but by no means so difficult an undertaking as is often stated.—
"Wilmot's Life of Vice Admiral Lord Lyons."

Lakes That Change Color.

It is well known that the water of many lakes exhibits characteristic colors. The lake of Geneva, at the western end of Switzerland, is blue, while the lake of Constance, at the eastern end of Switzerland, is green. Blueness implies purity, since the natural color of water is blue. A green lake has its water slightly clouded with impurities, which may be exceedingly fine particles, separately invisible. Professor Spring of the University of Liege says that green lakes sometimes become absolutely colorless for a time, and he has found that this sudden change of hue is due to the washing into the lakes of mud colored red by oxide of iron. Red is complementary to green, and the result of the mixture is that the green color of the water becomes for the time neutralized.

Curious Indian Custom.

A curious custom prevails among the lowest classes of southern India for obtaining rain in times of drought. A gigantic figure of a woman is stretched to its full length on its back on an open, very low four wheeled carriage, and the carriage is dragged round the streets, the Indian peasantry accompanying it with the deafening noise of their tom-toms, drums and bugles. The custom is explained by the popular notion that the figure on the cart represents the wife of Varuna, the god of rain, and that when he sees his favorite wife dragged ruthlessly along the streets he sends down torrents of rain to wreak his vengeance.

Origin of the Postal System.

The wonderful postal system, which has reached out until it includes every country on the face of the earth, had its beginning in the mind of an ingenuous Frenchman.

In 1658, early in the reign of Louis XIV. M. de Velaye established a private penny post. Boxes were set up at the street corners for the reception of letters and offices were opened in various quarters of Paris. Collections were made once a day from the street boxes, followed many hours later by a single delivery, and thus the first postoffice in the world was established.

M. de Velaye was so greatly encouraged by the success of his enterprise that in order to develop it still further he printed certain forms of billets or notes which were intended to cover all the ordinary requirements of business in great towns. These forms contained blanks which were intended to be filled up by the pen with such special matter as might be necessary to complete the writer's object. The idea at once became popular, and the printed forms accompanied the expansion of the postal service throughout the larger cities of France, and it was many years before they fell into disuse.—Harper's Round Table.

Still Smoking Twelve Years After.

The man had been absent from New York for a number of years. During his absence many changes had taken place.
Some of his friends had moved away and some had died. Though he had taken the New York papers pretty regularly, he had not kept up with these friends of his as he should have done.

One evening he called upon a woman friend who was living at a hotel. Arrived at her rooms, he found her surrounded by a crowd of people, but he finally reached her and shook her by the hand.

"You are just the same," he said ad-miringly. "You haven't changed a particle," which was not at all true, for her hair had turned so white that she had the air of a marquise in some old picture. "And your husband, too," he went on, "he is just the same as ever. I saw him just now down in the lobby. He was smoking."

The woman looked a trifle startled for a moment, then recovered her composure with considerable effort.

"I am sorry to hear," she remarked gravely, "that my husband is still smoking. He has been dead for 12 years."—New York Sun.

Shooting Stars.

When a shooting star breaks into flame in our atmosphere, the residuum of the combustion remains in the air and can be found in what is known as atmospheric dust. The virgin snow of the polar regions was often seen to be spotted with traces of dust which contained particles of iron. Like particles are found on church towers and elsewhere. Among the minute bodies that dance in the sun's rays there are certainly particles of shooting stars.

The sands of the African deserts when examined by a microscope present traces of very small iron particles which seem to have been subjected to high temperature, and the Challenger on its remarkable trip in the Atlantic found at times in its dragnet fragments of magnetic iron which we have every reason to believe fell from the sky. Sir William Thompson (Lord Kelvin) and Richter have even seen in the aerolites the disseminators of the germs of life throughout the universe.—Chautau-quan.

The Strength of a Bear.

Few people know that a grizzly bear can give points to any other carnivorous animal in point of strength. A grizzly bear weighing just 400 pounds has been watched carrying a heifer two-thirds its own weight, for two miles up the most steep and rugged mountain side, and this without pausing for one instant for rest.

The big white polar bear, though not nearly so dangerous a customer, is capable of performing the most extraordinary feats of strength. A polar bear has been seen to move with his paw a bowlder six men had with difficulty put in position to guard a cache of provisions.

Purifying the Air.

It is found in many factories that the hands do much more work in a given time if they have good air to breathe.
Some firms have quite elaborate provisions for the purifying of the atmosphere of the workrooms.

In the absence of these a simple plan is to put a spoonful of oil of turpentine into a liter bottle of well water, shake it well, and then blow it about the room through an atomizer. An improvement is to mix a few drops of acetate ether with the turpentine.—St.
Louis Republic.

Thou-ing.

To persons of lesser rank one saith "You," without thou-ing anybody, be it not some little child, and that thou wert much more aged and that the cus-tome itself amongst the meer courteous and better bred were to speak in such manner. What concerneth familiar friends, amongst them the custome doth comport in certain places that they "Thou" one another more freely, in other places one's more reserved.—
"Youths' Behavior," 1652.

Wasted.

"I didn't know you were so sarcastic when I married you."
"Did you not? Possibly you have forgotten I said, 'This is so sudden,' when you proposed after four years' courtship."—Collier's Weekly.

If two tuning forks of the same pitch are placed facing each other, the one sounding, the other silent, in a few seconds the one which was silent will be giving out a distinctly audible sound.

Always put off until tomorrow any evil you can do today.—Somerville Journal.
